

Sexting - but how?

Aim	To find out how to create revealing pictures of oneself without putting oneself at risk e.g. of blackmail. Is it possible to share them with one's partner in a safe way? If yes, how?
Duration	-
Number of participants	any
Difficulty	medium
Conditions	A trusting atmosphere is necessary, possibly same-sex groups
Material	Smartphone, internet access
Preparation	-

Description

Nude and erotic pictures of themselves are part of young people's sex lives. Time and again, such pictures appear in unwanted places and cause problems for the people in those pictures.

In this workshop the participants work on how to create such pictures without putting themselves at risk.

Is it possible to share the pictures with one's partner without him/her being able to pass them on?

Possible criteria:

- No body parts or characteristics are visible which can be clearly attributed to a certain person.
- The head is not visible.
- Editing and depersonalising a picture can make it even more interesting.
- Showing the pictures on one's own smartphone instead of sending it to others

The results of the exercise remain with the participants and are not passed out outside the group.

Source OIAT/Saferinternet.at based on the idea of MakeITsafe trainers

Link <http://peerbox.at/?p=266>