Description

Version 1: The participants work on a concrete case. They should come up with an adequate and meaningful way to deal with it and to react to it.

Version 2: The participants work on a case study from the ZARA Counteract brochure.

The following questions might help to reflect on the cases:

Why does somebody post this?

What might lie behind this?

How can I react without putting myself at risk?

In such a case, what can the difference be between “telling on someone” and “getting help”?

Does this case upset me personally? Why? Why not?

Could this be a criminal offence?

Do I have to react or can I pretend not to have noticed anything?
